petWALK - the #1 vendor of high-quality doors designed for pets enters the IOT

Austria, 10.01.2018

petWALK has been working relentlessly on its newest product developments. petWALK.control and petWALK.access will make it easier for you as well as your pet to operate the petWALK pet door.

With the extension petWALK.control, petWALK enters the world of IOT. It allows you to operate the pet door with any web browser or mobile device. Opening, closing and all the settings are just a tap away.

petWALK.control not only enables the complete control of the door even from a distance, but also offers integration into any Smart Home system using an open API interface.

Extend your stay at your friend's house over night? Not home for the day? Broken Leg? – Never worry about walking your dog in emergency situations again. Open your pet's door with a simple touch of a button to let it out.

In the case you want to make your pet entirely do the job itself, program its RFID chip to the door and restrict its access or exit at certain times. petWALK will detect your pet's tag and will automatically open.

In challenging installation situations, the RFID-detection of pets was sometimes difficult. To ease the process, an external RFID-antenna was developed: petWALK.access.

Thanks to petWALK.access, one or multiple RFID antennas can be mounted anywhere around the door to ensure safe and easy detection of your pet's RFID tag. petWALK access can be powered with batteries or regular power connection. Complying with the degree-of-protection standard IP67, the module is also perfectly suitable for outdoor use.

Interested? Coming soon! Both extensions are available to preorder now. Look out for further information on our website or get in touch with us at CES.
